

Call 2024 / 2025

U21 Sustainable Micro-Internships

The international consortium Universitas 21 invites Tecnológico de Monterrey and its students to participate in the U21 Sustainable Micro-Internships program

The Vice-Rector for International Affairs launched this call with the objective of selecting the 40 students who will participate as representatives of the Tecnológico de Monterrey. Throughout the program participants will be engaged with and learn from students across the globe, spanning 21 countries and 19 time zones.

About Sustainable Micro-internships

The Universitas 21 (U21) Sustainable Micro-Internships is a two-week online free program where student groups will be tasked with providing a solution to a real-life United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDG)-related challenge, which will be pitched to senior stakeholders within the organization at the end of the program.

As a result of the program

You will develop many skills, including:

- Agility – your ability to adapt to new environments, to grasp topics outside of your academic specialism and work with difference.
- International Collaboration – first-hand experience of working across different time zones, languages and cultures, bringing together global knowledge to deliver results for an employer.
- Influence – your ability to build trust and solve complex problems quickly.
- Presentation Skills - your ability to clearly convey complex information to your stakeholders. Teamwork -your ability to work with a new and globally diverse team to deliver a solution.

LinkedIn Micro-credential Successful completion of the program and all activities will earn you the Leading Change micro-credential which you can display on your LinkedIn profile, demonstrating that you have developed the skills to tackle complex global issues and stand up as a leader.

Three points for eligible extracurricular activities valid for the International Diploma.
